The History of Ettore

Ettore Steccone came to the U.S. to seek his fortune and chose window cleaning as his profession. He became a fixture around town riding his Indian motorcycle with a ladder on his shoulders and a bucket dangling from its end.

As much as he enjoyed his job and the freedom it afforded him, he didn't like the tools he had to work with. He had a better idea. While cleaning windows, and with the help of his wife, doing janitorial work, he started tinkering with his idea for a revolutionary new type of window squeegee: a T-shaped tool, manufactured of brass with a single precision slit rubber blade which dried windows virtually streak free. After much trial and error, he patented his innovative new squeegee in 1936 and dubbed it the NEW DEAL.

With a small shop set up in the garage at the back of his house, he began the process of manufacturing his innovation. Initially, he approached some dealers specializing in supplying products to the window cleaning trade. They were skeptical. He was told that the squeegee was too small, too light and that he would never be able to convert others to use his new-fangled NEW DEAL.

Ettore took his product to one of the largest and most well known suppliers of window cleaning tools at that time. The company summarily rejected it. This time however, Ettore made a wager with the owner. He bet him the best hat in New York City, that within one month, the supply company would come begging to buy his revolutionary new squeegee. With that bet in mind, Ettore began working his magic with his fellow window cleaners asking them just to try it out for one day on the job to see if they didn't agree that his tool was far superior to anything that they were currently using.

His marketing plan worked. Before long, most of the window cleaners in New York were using Ettore's new squeegee and the word spread across the industry that there was a better way to clean glass.

Ettore continued to manufacture and ship product out of his garage until the early 1950's when he and his five employees moved into his first real factory. Things did not always run smoothly for this hard working, determined man. The loss of his patent, the infringement of his name, world conflicts causing metal shortages which in turn could delay the production of his squeegee; all things which would possibly defeat other men, served only to make Ettore persevere.

His NEW DEAL took on a new name and became the ETTORE Master and a name that became known throughout the world. Ettore lived to see his American dream fulfilled. He saw his family prosper and his company earn recognition throughout the world as manufacturer of quality window cleaning products guaranteed to leave windows sparkling clean and streak free. He died in 1984 at the age of 87. Today his family continues his legacy by bringing quality products not only to the professional but to home owners throughout the world.

The Aquaclean system is designed to reduce the maintenance and cost in manufacturing pure water. Pretreatment cartridge, Reverse Osmosis and a De-ionization. We have created the ultimate system that requires the least filter replacement than anything else on the market.

Step 1. Tap water flows into the Carbon/KDF prefilter to begin the anti-scaling process and remove chlorine in the water supply.

Step 2. The Reverse Osmosis Membranes separate water and removes 92% to 95% of total dissolved solids.

Step 3. The De-ionization Cartridge removes the remaining total dissolved solids, producing water that is 99.99% pure.
